George Taylor Demo

Our October demonstrator was our own George Taylor. George showed his awesome technique for creating wave looking epoxy pours. His charcuterie boards are customized with CNC carved names, and the epoxy pour. He listed several tips and techniques for a successful pour. Keeping the work level is utmost in importance, because the epoxy is blended and moved by the blast from a heat-gun. The heat-gun is also used to remove bubbles in the epoxy. Having a finish on the wood prior to executing the pour is recommended. Mica powder adds base color, and accent colors are made using epoxy dye. A bit of alcohol is spritzed for 'pop'.
